What Causes Lightning And Thunder? | Science Trends

What causes thunder: Thunder is the sound lightning makes, this is because lightning suddenly increases the pressure and temperature around it, expanding the air and making a thunderous boom. Most of us are familiar with thunderstorms and the lightning and thunder that accompany them.

What Causes Red Lightning? | Reference

Red lightning is created by the excitation of nitrogen molecules in the atmosphere. It is produced above the clouds during storms. The red lights produced also are known as sprites.
